Re: Important Message Regarding Your Receipt of Mail From Chase/Bank One

Dear David W Barts :

As you may be aware, Chase and Bank One merged last year and have been working to bring the two companies together. We're very excited about the new firm's potential to present you with a broader array of products and services designed to help you achieve your financial goals. These products and services may often include private, unadvertised offers, customer-only discounts or special pricing features. However, our records indicate that you have requested not to receive marketing mail from us.

We'd like to start mailing to you again. If you would like to receive mailings, including the offers described above, you don't have to do a thing. Please be assured that your decision to rejoin our mailing list will not affect any other choices you have made, such as requests for us not to call you.

If you still prefer not to receive marketing mail from us, just follow the instructions below. Be sure to do so within 30 days.

We hope that you'll decide to receive this mail from us, and as always, thank you for your business.

Sincerely,

Joseph Bartolotta
Chase Home Finance
